

2010
URBAN HEALTH CONFERENCE

This has been a tough spell for a lot of people; there are more homeless, uninsured and unemployed people who need healthcare. Churches and parachurch organizations are making every effort to meet the wholistic health needs of people, even though many of their budgets have been hit by decreased donations. We are a people of faith who go deeper with God during tough times and we find ways to network and learn from each other - and pray for and with each other. This is a great time for a conference.

The 2010 Urban Health Conference, September 17-18, 2010 at Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena, California (<http://healthcaremissions.org>) is dedicated to inspiring, empowering and educating the workers of the urban health missional movement. The conference focuses on issues dealing with the theology of urban missions, gang violence, incarceration, parish nursing, avoiding professional burn-out, living among the poor, providing emotional and physical care for the homelessness, programs that successfully deal with drug-dependency, common disease profiles in the urban population, front office and back office management of curative medical practice dedicated to the poor, church-based health screenings and health fairs. The conference features 15 great inspirational speakers and committed exhibitors who help connect to people to venues of service where they are needed.

If you are a nurse, physician, psychologist, dentist, pharmacist, marriage and family therapist, urban health worker, public health worker, translator, front office staff, back office staff (biller, accountant) pastor, resident or high school or college student - you will find a great learning and sharing environment at the conference.

The conference offers 7.25 hours of CME/CEU credits to all health professionals. Registration is $75 (including two meals and CME/CEU credits) and there are discounted rates ($40) for students, urban health workers and pastors.

This conference has been transforms those who attend. Connections will be made and lives will be changed! Don't miss it!
